This year's theme is "Facing Waste." We will be highlighting the problem of waste to a broad audience of students from around the city. Our society is destroying the environment with our waste, and we desperately need to address the issues in our disposable mindset. In addition to advocating for legislation to be put in place to address waste and overproduction in America, it's important that we change our attitude about consumerism. Where better to start than with the youth, the future consumers, in our country?

Join us for a fun day of networking with youth from more than 50+ schools and organizations!
